How I Became Gray.

Tied to a Railroad Track, Waiting for Death.

Several years ago, while passing over the Pennsylvania railroad, I was much impressed by the appearance of one of my fellow-passengers, who occupied a seat in the same coach with me. It was not that his features were in any way striking, but the peculiarity about him was in his thick, full head of snowy white hair, standing out in abundant kinky curls on a head the owner of which was yet a young man, not more than thirty years of age. His features were not remarkable in any way, with the exception, perhaps, of a rather sad look, which seemed to indicate that he might have had at some time during his life a severe mental or physical shock, the effect of which had made an impression on him that would last as long as life.

Somehow, the thought kept recurring to me: "What made his hair white?" Somehow, I could not banish him from my thoughts. The scenery through which we were passing at a high rate of speed was grand, yet I could not enjoy it, and my eyes would turn from the green hills and deep gorges, to gaze again at this sad-eyed stranger with snowy hair.

I do not think I am impertinent or inquisitive to an unusual degree, but I confess that on this occasion I laid myself open to the charge of being both; for I left my own seat and took the vacant one in front of him, the back of which I turned over so that I was immediately face to face with the object of my curiosity.

After a time I made some remark intended to be introductory. He replied politely. An informal conversation followed. Then I ventured to refer to his white hair. Instead of showing surprise, he evidently expected the allusion, and had understood why I sought his company. He replied: "Your curiosity, sir, is natural, and you must not suppose that you are the first person who has made similar inquiry, for I am questioned almost daily as to the cause of my being white, although I am barely twenty-eight years of age. It turned from jet black to its present snowy whiteness in one night.

"Three years ago," he continued, "I was in the employ of a large wholesale house in New York as traveling salesman, and found myself in a Western State at about this time of the year, on one of my business tours for the house. I was obliged to visit a small town in the extreme western part of the State, to attend to some collections.

"I was successful in collecting the amount owing the firm, which, together with the sum I already had, amounted to nearly a thousand dollars.

"The village had been greatly excited for several weeks over the depradations of horse-thieves in the neighborhood; and only the night before my arrival, three fine horses had been taken from the stables of residents of the village, and of course many of the people were in a high state of excitement. Parties were out in every direction searching for the thieves and horses, and all strangers were looked upon with more or less suspicion.

"When I was ready for my return trip, one of our old customers, of whom I had just collected a large bill, and who had again favored our house with an order for goods, informed me that a few miles away on the line of the railroad a new place was just starting. It already had two stores; and he strongly advised me to stop off there as I might by so doing secure an order for goods. I thought it well to do so.

"As I stepped aboard the train, it was just nine o'clock in the evening. I saw the conductor and informed him of my wish to stop at W——, the name of the new settlement. He took my fare, at the same time saying: 'Be on the platform right after you hear the whistle; we'll slow down so that you can jump off. It is such a new place that they have no post-office there yet, and consequently we have no mail-bag to leave or take on. When any one wishes to get aboard from there, the station master flags the train.'

"When I heard the warning whistle, therefore, I made my way to the platform, and as the train came almost to a stand-still, jumped off. As I did so, the conductor called out. 'The depot is about forty rods further down the track. Keep right ahead, around the bend yonder, and you'll come to the settlement in a minute. We slowed down a little too quick; fact is, we have not stopped here often enough to know where to put on the brakes in order to hit the depot right. Would take you down there, but we have to meet the down-express at M——, fifty miles further up. She's due here in just three hours, so you see we've got to hurry up.'

"His last words ended in a shout, as the train disappeared in the darkness around the bend.

'I had two heavy sample-bags, both of which I had dropped off the train before springing down myself, and as the cars disappeared in the distance, I stooped to pick them up. But as I did so, some one from behind sprang heavily upon me, and, taken at a disadvantage, I went down in a heap, with the stranger on top of me.

"'Bring the cords, Jed,' I heard my unknown assailant say, and in a very few minutes I was securely bound, hand and foot, with strong lashings of rope. I was then permitted to sit up, and I tried to discover in the darkness the apppearance of my enemies. But it was too dark to see their faces clearly. I was enabled to make out the forms of two powerful men, in rough dress and broad-rimmed, slouch hats.

"Then one of them accosted me.

"'You is the chap that was down to Jone's store yesterday, I take it?'

"'Yes,' I was at Jones's store yesterday; and now what do you want of me, and why are you treating me in this way?'

"'We were down there, too,' answered the other, who had not spoken until now, 'and we heard you give a good deal of advice about how to catch the hoss-thieves the people were so excited about. You advised them to organize a vigilance committee, and hang every hoss-thief caught. And they are taking your advice.

"'We heard old Jones advise you to stop at this place, and it suited our plans to a dot. We were just on our way to the depot when the train slowed up here, and dropped you right into our hands without any trouble.

"'Now,' he continued, 'we are going to make a kin of example of you. The'd never have thought of forming a vigilance committee if it hadn't been for you, and we propose to fix you so you'll not have a chance to give any more advice.

"Saying which they conversed together in a low tone for a moment, and then one of them went to the bruse at the roadside, where I could hear him chopping and splitting with a hatchet. Presently he returned, bearing several sticks in his hand.

"'Now, my lad,' said Jed, 'we're going to stake you down here, stretched across the track, and see if you'll get up any more vigilance committees.'

"Their object was now only too apparent, and was nothing more nor less than to fasten me down on the railroad track, so that the first train that came along would run over and crush me to death!

'I took in the whole horror of the situation at once, and wildly protested:

"'Surely, if you are horse-thieves, you must have some heart, and I beg of you not to torture an honest man in this way!'

"But I might as well have talked to the stones along the grade. One of the thieves had been busy whittling away on a piece of wood, while the above conversation was taking place. He now advanced and spoke:

"'Jed, just hold on to him, and I'll stop his talking so much,' and as I was grasped in the powerful arms of the aforesaid Jed, the second ruffian forced my mouth open, and roughly fitted the piece of wood upon which he had been whittling between my jaws, making it utterly impossible for me to speak, and painful for me even to breathe. Then I was quickly thrown to the earth, and dragged directly across the railroad track.

"While one of the villians held me down, although I struggled with all my might, the other drove a large wooden peg, or stake, into the ground, close to the outside of one of the iron rails. Then making a loop at one end of a cord, he passed it over my feet, drew it taut, and fastened the other end to the stake.

"He next proceeded to prepare another rope in a similar manner, after driving a second stake on the outside of the other rail. This second loop he passed over my head, drew it as tight as possible, without actually strangling me, and fastened the end to the stake just driven.

"I now found myself in a horrible position—with hands and feet tied; another rope was slip-noosed around my ankles and fastened to a strong stake, and a slip-noose around my neck was drawn so taut that I could scarcely breathe, with the end of the rope fastened to a stake on the opposite side.

"I was literally stretched across the iron rails, with my head resting upon one rail, while my ankles were stretched across the other, and the least struggle on my part almost produced strangulation.

"'Now, young feller, we wish you much joy in your theory of catching hoss-thieves. Your vigilance committee won't be apt to do you much good, anyhow,' said one of the men.

"'Wal, you'll have time to meditate on't,' said the other ruffian. 'The express train won't be along under an hour and a half yet, and in your position you can do a powerful sight of thinking in that time.

"I could not answer, and I heard the ruffians depart without being able to make a sign or utter a groan.

"The horror of my situation burst full upon my senses, now that I was left alone.

"It was only too true—the express train would be along in an hour and a half!

"I recollect thinking how delightful it would seem, in comparison, if I could have the privilege of standing up unfettered before a whole gang of desperadoes, single-handed and fight for my life, even though I was sure to lose it.

"Then again I thought of this being a flag station—no train would be apt to be flagged at eleven o'clock at night, even if it were, I was lashed down so far from the depot that it would be under full headway again before it reached me.

"I thought of my mother and sister far away in New York, and wondered how long it would be before they would hear of my death, or if they would ever hear of it.

"Again my thoughts took another channel, would my death be instantaneous, or was I fated to suffer physical agony—agony akin to what I was suffering in mind? Why was I singled out, as it were, to undergo this terrible fate, instead of another?

"Then, with a revulsion of feeling, I thought of Him who had stilled the storm, and who rebuked His companions by saying: 'Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?'

"My mind somehow reverted to the above passage again and again, and I seemed to grow strong in faith. There were a hundred ways by which I might be saved yet, before the dreaded train arrived. At least, if I must, I would die like a man, with no foolish blasphemy.

"I struggled to move but the struggle only seemed to tighten the cords.

"Suddenly a shock of horror ran through me with such intensity that I came near losing my senses. As before mentioned, my head lay upon one of the rails of the railroad-track, my left ear being pressed close down upon the iron, and I had as yet been unable to turn myself over in the least, on account of the rope around my neck holding my head in so firm a position.

"Lying thus, with my ear to the track, I heard, or rather felt, a faint jar communicating to the iron rail.

"With horror unutterable I listened, with an unnatural fascination born of despair.

"Yes, the rail seemed to tremble; and now a far-away, low, murmuring sound could be heard. It was the express train coming!

"Perhaps it was still miles away, but it was drawing nearer.

"I could now, in my recumbent position, with my ear pressed upon the track, distinctly hear the far-away rumble made by the train.

"Fear and agony lent me additional strength. I jerked my feet up with all my might, and came very near strangling myself by the effort.

"Then I lay perfectly still for a full minute, endeavoring to catch my breath. My desperate effort to break loose had the effect of tightening the cord around my neck to such a degree that at each respiration I emitted a peculiar whistling noise, not unlike the bad attack of membraneous croup.

"When I had sufficiently recovered to take in my surroundings again, I heard a man's voice, apparently quite near, and listened wildly for a repetition of the sound. It soon came, and these were the words: 'I heard somebody whistle, somewhere about here.'

"'Oh, it must have been something else,' answered another voice.

"'No,' said the first speaker, 'I know I heard something whistle, and if it is the horse thieves, we'll have them before morning.'

"I knew that these must be the voices of members of the vigilance committee, beating the country for the thieves, and who, if they were made aware of my position, would quickly relieve me.

"And now, how frightfully near the train seemed to be! I could hear the steady roar as it swept onward toward me, and with wild agony I once more desperately strove with my bonds.

"This time I was so effectually choked by my violent exertions that I quite lost my senses for I know not how long, but gradually recovering, and gasping heavily for breath, I opened my eyes and saw a lurid tinge lighting up the trees and the heavens, beyond the bend in the track.

"The locomotive was bearing down upon me with lightning speed, and soon all would be over; a few more minutes, or perhaps seconds, and I would be ground to pieces under the wheels.

"I now fully realized that it was useless for me to struggle further, as I had not time to liberate myself even if such a thing was possible.

"I had struggled so deliberately that mind and body were in an exhausted state, and I quietly lay there awaiting the shock, thinking that my agony of mind and body would soon be over. But as this thought passed through my mind, the voice I had heard before again broke the stillness: 'I tell you I heard it again, and it sounded just like a person half-chocked,' and then I saw a person slowly emerge from the gloom, very near, and a little in front of me, within range of my vision, and approaching directly towards me.

"I recollect thinking how slowly and deliberately this man approached, when there was such need of great haste.

"All at once, and just as the stranger had drawn near me, a blinding glare came around the bend, and the roar of the express train filled the air. At the same instant that the headlight of the locomotive came into view I recollect hearing the stranger yell, in a tone of horror: 'John! quick! here's a man tied down on the track!'

"After that I have no clear recollection, but can dimly remember, like seeing through a haze, that some one savagely tore up the stakes and dragged me roughly around—a blinding glare and a terrific roar and rush, and that was the last I knew of any thing until two days after.

"I then woke up in a bed within a room, while several men stood around. One of them, whom I afterward ascertained to be a physician, spoke, when he observed that I was awake. 'He's coming out all right. The fever has left him. He'll soon be on his feet again.'

"One of the other persons in the room now addressed me: 'Pretty close call you have had, stranger! If we'd been a minute, or even a half or a quarter of a minute later, you'd have been ground to powder under them car-wheels. It was just a touch-and-go case, and the next minute after I'd dragged you off the track the express went by: I was so near that the suction knocked me over, and you had fainted dead away.'

"There is very little more of interest to tell. I learned afterward that I had been rescued by two members of the vigilance committee, who were on a scout after the thieves, having a clew to their whereabouts.

"Shortly after my rescue, other members of the committee had discovered the rendezvous of the thieves, which was very close to where they captured me, and surprising them, captured the whole gang. My pocket-book with my money intact, had been taken from one of them, probably from my brief acquaintance, Jed.

"But I never saw any of them afterward; for as soon as I was able to travel, I started for home, with my hair as white as you see it now. It was black when I was tied down upon the track, and the men who released me say it was snowy white when they dragged me from the rails."—Youth's Companion.

SOCIAL CUSTOMS.

Regard for Each Other's Welfare the Very Essence of Genuine Courtesy.

It is not uncommon to find persons who in their practice of etiquette and social customs will 'strain at the gnat and swallow the camel.' They are rigidly punctillious as to the use of the fork in raising food to their lips, and never the knife, and just how to place knife and fork when done eating, and other such points, but they will violate the most common rules of syntax in their speech, with a continual free and easy defiance of the most elementary principles of grammar, so that we are obliged to ask: How can children ever learn correct speech while they are hearing such barbarisms, such abuse of language continually poured out by parents and guests at the table and elsewhere? In the name of reason is not a principle of grammar or rhetoric as important as the mere custom of etiquette?

As to the modes of courtesy between individuals we need to remember that a spirit of kindness, of tender regard for each others' feelings and welfare is the very essence of genuine courtesy, without which the forms of etiquette are merely hypocrital and hollow-hearted.

An incident very significant is related of the good Prince Albert, the husband of Queen Victoria. On one occasion he had as a guest at dinner an old gentleman who used the knife in eating instead of the fork. He had been accustomed to do so. The children at the table noticed it, and there was a little sensation among them, which Prince Albert with a look quieted, and at once took his own knife and used it in the same way to the end of the dinner. He did this so that his guest might feel at ease in his presence. This was genuine courtesy. It was true hearted politeness, this thoughtful cousideration of the feelings and comfort of his guest, that kind of politeness which is immeasurably above any form of etiquette. It was characteristic of the grace and and kindliness of his character. We thank him for this example, and if our social usages were pervaded by the same spirit we should be the better and happier for it.

The use of the knife in eating in a decorous manner without unseemly haste is not an offense. When will young ladies learn that bad grammar, the use of such phrases as 'just lovely,' 'just splendid,' and the list is a long one, is an impropriety and far more ridiculous and hurtful in its influence than the decorous use of the knife in eating can be?—Christian at Work.

TONSORIAL POINTERS.

Mr. Whangdoodle Baxter Has Something to Say About Barbers.

De snbjec, ob dis ebenen's discource am barbers. I has selected dis subject bekase de cullud race am much addicte' ter barberism, not only in dis kentry but likewise in Africa.

I has heered a heap ob references ter allusions in regard ter barbers, dat talks too much and so forth, and I am sorry ter say wid humileashun dat dar am good grounds for hit.

Howsumeeber, dar's no danger ob de barber shops goin' outer de bizness so long as the wimin folks cuts dar cornswid dar husband's best razor. Dis and de fact dat aberage woman can' be conwinced dat bit don't spile a razor ter sharpon hit on a butcher's razor.

Some barber's am too high-toned ter call demsefs barbers. I knowed one who called hissef a tonsilorious artis, physignominical har dresser, carnum manipilater, capillery, abridger, and professor ob crinecultural abcision. He was one ob de orney barbers, anb de customers what got inter his hans got hissef inter a bad scrape, and no mistake. I has heered barbers was surgins, originally and dis sort of barbers am surgins yet. Keep way from 'em.

Talk in' about barpers bein' surgins, de barber shop am not the only place whar people get skinned alive. Some time hit hurts moah to get shaved in a broker's office, den hit does in a barber's chair.

De beautiful poick who said 'defittenest place for ter man dye am whar he dyes for man' must have had a barber shop in his head when he writ dem solemn lines. 'De Isles of Greece,' I has heered so much about, wasn't dey in a barber shop? Some folks don't preibiate de litterary labors ob de barbers. Dis heah head-work takes brains, you jes bet hit does.

Men, and 'specially boys, like ter be shaved. Shaving a boy am like reducin' expenses, for yer has ter cut down. Heah! heah! heah! I had a young freaten ter sue me for damages. He said, cut off his merstache. I tole him I didn't see hit, and den he got so mad he wanted ter kill me. He couldn' be persuaded dat his whiskers wasn't ripe yet.

De talk what barbers gib dar cusers don't do no hurt. Dey nebber really says nuffin.' When a barber talks to acustomer, and am sociable-like, he don't mean nuffin 'cept dat he wants ter scrape an acquaintance. Dat's all, I has heered tell dat de reason dat we don' heah nuffin' more about de phonograf am bekase hit went inter a barber-shop and was talked ter death, but I don't believe hit. Hits simply a cousult ter de barberous perfeshun.

Most men will stand a clip on de head from a barber, and dey don't lose dar temper ef de barber pulls dar nose besides. Dey wouldn't take dat from nobody else 'ceptin' a barber. Before I tuok ter lecturin' I was a tonsorial artis mysef. I once tole a man wid mightylittle har on his head dathe needed a bottle ob my Magic Har Restorer and Electrcial Elixir, but he shuck his head very solum-like and said dat hit wasn't har restorer so much as hit was a divorce what he needed. I guess arter all he knowed best what he wanted.

I also heered dat in Chicago you could see wimen at the polls, dat dar was lots ob female barbers. Hit strikes me dis move am shear nensense. and nuffin' else.

When I was tonsorial artis I had more change in my pocket den I has had sence I has been on de lecture platform. Uncle Mose, please pass de hat.

H. Y. STITZER, Secretary. JAMES A. McCLAIN, Chairman.

COLONEL MATTHEW S. QUAY, in an interview with a TIMES reporter last week, said that with the feeling in the northwestern counties over the defeat of the Billingsley oil pipe bill as it is, and if what he heard about the condition in Philadelphia is true, the Republican party is in a bad shape. No comments.

GENERAL Wagner, the examiner and inspector of Soldiers' Orphans' Schools, has forwarded his annual report to Governor Beaver and handed in his resignation. He says that the schools are under the same inefficient, incomplete and illegal form of management as when the investigations were first begun, and recommends as the only remedy the appointment of an inspector who is paid a salary which will justify him to devote his whole time to the work of inspection, a man of push and energy.

THE new tax law now pending in the state senate seems a bitter pill to swallow for the Republican Senators, who for political and selfish purposes would rather leave things as they are and defeat the new revenue bill. The corporations and especially the railroads are as usual at the bottom of the trouble. They do not fancy the idea of paying the same tax upon their vast properties as the farmer and working man does on his few hard earnings. They used all possible means to influence the corporation Senators to fight the new bill to the last, and it required a special reminder by Governor Beaver and State Treasurer Quay to set these fellows right. They were told that the Republican party could not afford to carry the responsibility of defeating a bill which will increase the revenues of the state, and which is the only means by which the state debt may be reduced, as it had been under Pattison's administration. The Senate committee on finance finally reported the bill with a few minor amendments favorably.

REGARDING the Grit libel suit which was tried, in a fashion, at last week's court, we and many others were surprised at the severity of Judge Furst's sentence. Not that we admire the sensational Sunday papers or are anyways in sympathy with the Sunday Grit, but a $1000 fine and 6 month's imprisonment in the county jail is rather stiff punishment for the first offense of the kind and under such circumstances. True, papers like the Williamsport Grit, that delight in sending out through their columns some of the most unsavory and scandalizing news, should be learned a lesson, but there is some difference between chastising a man and breaking his neck. In fact there should be a limit even in justice. From all glean can we both the editor and manager of the paper are otherwise respectable young men, of good families, and possess an unusual amount of grit and push in business. Their journalistic failings, no doubt, are the result of their uncontrollable desire to furnish very spicy and sensational literature. What is most remarkable about the case is that the matter was dispatched in such very short order, the defendants having been arrested on Saturday a week, and were sentenced on the following Tuesday.

THAT it is high time for the state legislature to pass a law which will do away with the contradictions cropping out of the constructions put upon the present license law by the judges in several of the districts was never more apparent than this spring. While Judge Furst, of this district and Judge White, of the Indiana district, obey the dictates of their consciences and take the prohibition stand, Judge Cummin, of Lycoming county, Judge Woodward, of the Luzerne district, and Judge Bucher, of Mifflin district hold that a judge has no right to refuse license, except when the applicant has violated the license law. There must be a way out of this labyrinth of judicial power and the sooner it is resorted to the better for the dignity of our courts and judges. The Philadelphia Times recently threw some light upon this matter by the following editorial remarks, which point to the high license bill as the natural solution of this knotty question:

* * * If the provisions of the law clearly define the qualifications of applicants, there is nothing left for judges to decide, and why lodge an apparent power in the Courts that lacks the attributes of practical authority? As the law confers discretionary power upon the tribunal that is to grant or refuse licenses, the Judges are the last officials who should be thought of to exercise such discretion.

The present license law confers upon the courts outside of this city, the power to grant or refuse licenses under certain presumed limitations, and how have the Judges exercised that power? Hardly any two of them have construed their judicial discretion alike; and judicial interpretations of the law range from absolute prohibition to practically free license. And the reasons for such startling variations in the exercise of judicial duties under the same law, are entirely logical. Judges are elected by the people; they are neither more nor less than human, and they practically interpret the law on the principal of what may be delicately called popular sovereignty. When the dominant sentiment of a county or community is strongly against license, the license law becomes a prohibitory statute; when the dominant sentiment is for hotels and saloons and plenty of them, the same law becomes substantially a free license statute, and when counties or communities wrangle over license in nearly equal numbers and quite equal bitterness, the Judges become diplomatic—or politic would probably do better—and the law is balanced to give about equal victories and defeats to the disputants.

An elective judiciary should be most scrupulously protected against the perils of judicial discretion which must offend popular prejudices. The license question has already turned the scale in fully half a dozen judicial contests before the people, and with growing agitation of the issue and the certain increase of intensity on both sides alike in conviction and effort, the continuance of judicial discretion in granting and refusing licenses, would be a grave peril to every conscientious Judge in the State. Our Judges are charged with the administration of justice between man and man, and in order to command public trust in the faithful discharge of that great duty, they should be absolutely separated from all outside issues which drag the judicial ermine into the slums of politics. * * *

The fundamental theory of a high license system is that it will regulate the number of licenses itself by the increased cost of license, and that it so clearly defines the qualifications of applicants and the conditions on which license shall be granted, that there is really nothing left to the judicial office but the enforcement of the law by the judicial punishment of its violation. If communities or counties shall have any method of preventing license in their limits, it should be some more distinct method than the discretion of a Judge after he is thumped from post to pillar by bitterly disputing citizens, and thereby organized supporting and opposing parties to assert themselves as factors in the selection of his successor. Whether viewed from the standpoint of long past experience or from the obvious logic of judicial policy, we regard the argument as conclusive against judicial discretion in the granting of licenses.

Changes in the Departments.

HARRISBURG, May 2.—Auditor General Norris will retain Thomas McCamant, the efficient chief clerk under Auditor Generals Lemon and Niles. Mr. Glenn, Norris' law partner, has been appointed corporation clerk, in place of Robert Frazer, of Pittsburg. The only appointment announced by Thomas J. Stewart, Secretary of Internal Affairs, is Ex-Representative I. B. Brown, of Erie county, who will be the successor of Chief Clerk Greenland. Auditor General Niles was presented with a gold-headed cane by his clerks to-day, and J. Simpson Africa, the retiring Secretary of Internal affairs, with photographs of his clerks, handsomely framed. Chief Clerk Greenland received a testimonial of an almost similar character.

State Treasurer Quay's monthly statement shows a credit to the general fund of $1,992,876.61, of which $246,190 have been advanced to members and employes of the Legislature.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 2nd, 1887.

The beautiful Capitol of the United States is beginning to bloom now and in one week more it will be in all its glory of vernal attire. It is well that it does, for a good representation of the Nation will be here during the next few weeks, and the city waits to look its loveliest. The streets are being swept, the lawns trimmed, the fountains sparkle in the sunshine, and the parterres begin to blaze with natures brightest hues.

Washington will be nothing if not lively during the month of May. An entertainment will be in order, which, fortunately for pockets, is free to all.

This will be the dedication of the Garfield statue by the Army of the Cumberland, with procession, music, and an oration by the late Speaker Keifer, who by special permission of the High Custodian of political corpses, has been resustained for this occasion only, for a period not to exceed twenty minutes. And then will come the crowning event of the season, the long expected National Drill lasting for more than a week and culminating in grand final pageant on Decoration day.

The work of fencing in the Drill field is going on and everything will be in readiness in due time. The enclosure is 1,050 feet in diameter, and the grand stand will be so arranged as to enable spectators to see the entire field and all of the performances. For the camp, 750 tents have been engaged and some of the visiting companies will bring their own tents. At one extremity of the Drill ground a panorama of the famous battle between the Merrimac Monitor in Hampton Roads will be erected, which will be a very realistic exhibition of this encounter. It will be in full view of the grand stand, and will form one of the attractions each night.

The Garfield Statue which is to be unveiled with imposing ceremonies cost $65,000, of which $30,000 was appropriated by Congress for the pedestal, and the other $35,000 was raised by his comrades of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. It stands in a circle at the foot of Capitol Hill, southwesterly from the Capitol, and is a pedestrian figure of heroic size. It represents Garfield in a graceful attitude, with one hand holding a manuscript, as if he were addressing the people, and the other resting on a book supportedby a column, while his top coat is thrown back, giving the figure a felike appearance.

Miscellaneous News.

Surgeon Horatio N. Beaumont, U.S.N.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The navy department has received information of the death, at New Hope, Pennsylvania, of Surgeon Horatio N. Beaumont.

Coal Mine on Fire.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 2.—This evening the coal on fire in No. 1 colliery was burning more fiercely than ever. Preparations are being made to flood the mine as the only way to extinguish the fire. The loss so far is estimated at $100,000.

Ex-Judge Sheldon Dead.

BUFFALO, May 1.—Ex-Judge James Sheldon, for many years Chief Justice of the Superior Court bench, died at three o'clock this afternoon. He was sixty-six years old, and was one of the best known and most popular of Buffalo's public-spirited citizens.

—John have you seen that woman lately?

John, in astonishment: What woman? That woman Picking Grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in Large Cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

A Novel Fight Among Tramps.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 29.—Six tramps became engaged in a fight at the natural gas well here yesterday. Two of them were pushed into the flame of the burning gas. One, whose name is said to be Donovan, inhaled the flames and died almost instantly. George Dwyer, of Erie, Pa., is burned almost beyond recognition and cannot recover. Three of the tramps are in jail.

A Bank Teller Gone.

James N. Taggart, who for several years has been paying teller of the Union Trust Company in Philadelphia, has absconded, and an examination of the books of the company shows a deficit of something less than one hundred thousand dollars. Exactly what the defalcation is has not yet been ascertained.

Taggart lived in handsome style at 3707 Powelton avenue. He has been missed for nearly two weeks

Teller Targgart Short $29,000.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—The officers of the Union trust company announce that the approximate embezzlement of James N. Taggart, lately teller of that company, is $29,000, for part of which there is indemnity.

An Ungrateful and Vicious Tramp.

BETHLEHEM, Pa, May 2.—Henry Hoffman, a tramp, last week worked for Jacob Grim, a miller near Hellertown. Last evening while Grim and his family were at church Hoffman took possession of the house, battered in the doors, broke windows and when the family returned drove them from the house with an axe and pitchfork. With the assistance of Constable Bachm and some of his neighbors and under cover of a revolver Grim captured the tramp and lodged him in the lockup.

A LITTLE BOY'S SAD DEATH.

Jammed Between Cars and Left There by His Young Companions.

SHEANNDOAH, May 1.—The body of James Foley, aged 11 years of age, son James Foley, a prominent citizen of this place, was discovered jammed between the bumpers of an oil tank and a coal car, which were standing on the siding of the Lehigh Valley Road, at the foot of Main street, this morning. The body was discovered by a watchman returning from one of the collieries.

The boy was seen playing last night with several companions around the cars. When the other boys saw the accident they ran away and left him, even failing to tell the parents of the unfortunate lad. The little fellow was not missed from home last night and the first intimation his parents had of their boy's awful death was when the body was conveyed to the house this morning.

THE MOLLIE MAGUIRES.

The Last Two of the Famous Convicts Granted Their Pardons.

POTTSVILLE, April 29.—A dispatch has just been received from Harrisburg by Ex-Judge Thomas H. Walker, of this city, senior counsel for the convicts, announcing that the Pardon has approved the applications for pardon of Michael O'Brien and Christopher Donnelly, familiarly known as "the last of the Molly Maguires". Twenty-one were hanged, and many served various terms of imprisonment and a large number fled the country when themurderous conspiracy was exposed. O'Brien and Donnelly were sentenced in 1876 to fourteen years each in the Schuylkill County Prison for complicity in the murder of Gomer James, at Shenandoah, and the attempted murder of the Major brothers and William Thomas, at Mahanoy City. Commutation deducted, their sentences would have expired in June next, unless it should have been held that the two sentences imposed upon each did not merge, in which case they would have some two years longer to serve. Their liberation will complete the dark chapter of Mollie Maguire crime and expiation.

Poisoned by Canned Corn.

HAMMONTON, N. J. May 2.—Arthur P. Smith, a stenographer employed at the Philadelphia office of the Equitable life insurance company, and living here, was taken violently ill last night after eating canned corn purchased at a grocery store in this place. Physicians pronounced it lead poisoning. The young man is thought to be out of danger.

Over Two Million Trade Dollars Redeemed.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The United States sub treasury in this city redeemed up to last night 2,000,333 trade dollars. To-day between 20,000 and 30,000 more were redeemed. Up to last Tuesday the total amount redeemed at New York was less than $3,000,000. Assistant Treasurer Page said to-day that there were applications for the redemption of about $500,000 beyond the amount thus far redeemed.

CHASING A HORSE-THIEF.

Bullets Had No Terrors for Him and He Got Away.

WILKESBARRE, April 29.—On Wednesday last a valuable horse was stolen from the stable of Rouse & Kline, at Weatherly. Officer Harrington was put upon the track of the thief and traced him to Harrington swamp. The thief rode through the swamp on horse back and the officer, who was seated in a carriage, had to give up the chase. On Thursday afternoon the thief turned up in another section of the country. He stopped at the farm house of Christian Schan, who had been aprised of the theft, and so had all the farmers in the vicinity, had his suspicions aroused. The thief became alarmed and took to his heels. Farmers Schan and Lutz mounted their horses, and taking with them shotguns, followed. They called the thief to halt, but he refused and they fired upon him. The stranger escaped to the mountain near by, but his capture is only a question of time unless he prefers starvation.

The stolen horse was found tied to a tree near by, and returned to its owners. In the exciting chase the thief dropped a blanket which he carried around on his shoulders. There were four or five bullet-holes in it, and it is more than possible that the wearer may have received mortal wounds.

A RAILROAD WAR.

Trouple Over the Pennsylvania Boycott of Western Roads.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The refusal by the Pennsylvania railroad to sell tickets to the accredited agents of the western railroads is regarded by the Ticket Agent G. G. Lansing as the beginning of a war for supremacy between the trunk lines and the western companies. Mr. Lansing says the Pennsylvania road's action is practically a boycott, and that it is one of the results of the meeting of the general passenger agents in this city on Friday. The Pennsylvania, which always takes the initiative in such matters, will be joined, he thinks by all the other trunk lines—the New York Central, the Erie, the Baltimore, Ohio, and the Delaware, Lackwanna and Western. Mr. Lansing characterizes this move on the part of the trunk lines as a most violent attempt to carry out their bold policy of compelling the western roads to abolish the payment of commissioners to agents, a policy the western roads have steadily resisted. The western roads, he says, will retaliate on Monday by compelling the trunk lines to show cause in the courts why trunk line roads should not furnish tickets as before. The western roads will also appeal to the interstate commission, claiming that discrimination is being made, contrary to the provisions of the law.

PINNED IN THE ENGINE'S WRECK.

Horrible Death of a Fireman and a Brakeman on the Reaping.

TAMAQUA Pa., May 1.—A coal and a freight train came into collision on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Nintzel's switch, two miles west of this place, at noon yesterday. William Pruett, of Catawissa, a brakeman, who was riding on the engine, was killed. He was pinned fast on the seat in the engine cab and scalded to death by escaping steam. He lived about an hour in this position. The engine had to be pried apart with iron bars before his body could be extricated. He was 21 years old and unmarried. Charles A. McAfee, a fireman, saw the coal train coming and tried to jump, but one leg was caught between the engine and the water-tank and pinched off above the knee, dropping McAfee to the embankment from whence he crawled fifty feet. Amputation was performed, but it is doubtful if he can live. Samuel Ettingham, the freight train engineer, was injured internally, but it is thought not seriously. Both locomotives are completely wrecked and fully twenty coal and freight cars. The damage to rail road property is estimated at $50.000. The cause of the accident is laid to the dispatcher's office here, orders having been sent to hold the coal train at East Mahanoy junction after it had passed that point, and therefore too late. An engine was sent out from here to catch the freight train and stop it, but that was too late also.

RAGGED, DIRTY AND HUNGRY

CARLISLE, Pa., May 1.—Captain Pratt arrived here yesterday morning from Fort Marion, Fla., with his sixty five Apache boys and girls, members of Geronimo's band, captured by General Miles in Mexico last summer. From the depot the captain marched them to the Indian school, some 400 or 500 yards distant. Here they filed into the dining room and sat down to breakfast of beef, potatoes, bread and coffee. To this they took very kindly, and showed considerable ability in handling the white man's knife and fork. They were then taken outside and grouped against the wall of one of the buildings where a photographer took their picture. They were a rough looking set. Some had nothing on but a ragged set of underwear. Some were shoeless, others hatless. Others were in a heterogeneous mass of varigated rags. Many of the girls wore little more than a tattered skirt, while about the only protection for others was an old table cloth or dirty government blanket. These were soon removed and given a tubbing, the scrubbing being done by civilized little Indians, who seemed to enjoy taking the hide off of their less favored brethren. They were then seated on chairs while red skinned barbers cropped their long hair. Shortly after this they were given clean clothes and turned over to the Apaches, who came last fall to be shown the grounds and to be initiated into the mysteries of civilization.

INCREASED buoyancy of spirits, perfect assimilation of food, improved appetite, gain in flesh, sound refreshing sleep, heightened color in the cheeks and lips, added brilliancy to the eyes, follows the use of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. A bottle or two used in the family would obviate the entire train of spring maladies. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

OUR GOODS SHALL SPEAK

The object of this advertisement is not to tire you with a lengthy list of articles but simply to attract your attention to the arrival of our enormous stock of

SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS

We know that nothing that we can say will interest you enough to listen. Therefor we'll let our goods and our very low prices speak for themselves. All we ask is that you come within hearing distance. We will not enumerate goods because they must be seen to be appreciated. Comparison will show that in variety and aste our goods are offered elsewhere. Again, you will find that our prices are just as low as the lowest asked by other merchants. The fact that we mean what we say will be apparent as soon as you enter our establishment. Last, but not least by any means, you will find our store brimful of everything belonging on the shelves of a first-class general merchandise house.

—E. W. Mauck wishes to inform his many friends and patrons that he has the finest assortment of Wall Paper, plain and fancy Decorations, &c. ever brought to town. All persons wishing to have papering or decorating done should call on him at Mauck's store on Penn street, before buying elsewhere.

—If J. H. Woomer's advertisment in another column catches your eye remember that what he says about his horse collars me ans busin ss. The fact is, all the farmers using that collar say they would have no other. Compare the collar with others in the market and you will at once give it your preference.

—John C. Morris, the popular tree agent, of Wolfe's store, is out delivering a large amount of fruit and ornamental trees. He claims to have sold a larger lot of trees this season than at any time before. The splendid satisfation which his trees gave in former seasons accounts for his good success this spring.

HORSEMEN, ATTENTION.--Dr. McQuim, an experienced veterinary surgeon, will be at the Musser House, Millheim, Pa. on Friday, Saturday and Monday. Farmers and others who have horses with any blemishes or diseases are invited to bring them to him and he will guarantee effectual and sure cures.

—Some of our exchanges are informing their readers that a new Lutheran church is to be built at Rebersburg. We don't know where they get their information from, but we do know that Rebersburg has a fine Lutheran church and is not building another. Coburn however expects to erect a new brick church this summer.

—Capricious April has left us and when we think how illy it behaved we are sure nobody regrets its departure. "Soft and gentle May" came in on Sunday and with it the weather seems to have settled down to more regular habits, and under the warm sun the grass deepens in verdure, the buds open and the spring flowers bloom.

—The Mite Society of the St. John's Evang. Luth. congregation will hold its regular monthly meeting in the chapel of the church, this (Thursday) evening. Miss Puella E. Dornblaser, President of the Clinton County W. C. T. U. is expected to be present to address the meeting. All are cordially invited.
COMMITTEE.

LOST.—A money purse, containing a $20 banknote, a $5 banknote, $10 in gold, 1 Silver Dollar, and about a dollar's worth of change, was lost on the pike between the toll-gate west of Millheim and the Aaronsburg gate. The finder will please return the money to the owner at his residence at Spring Mills, where a suitable reward will be given. 18-2t GEORGE JORDAN.

—Mrs. Lydia, C. Brumgard left for Philadelphia on Tuesday morning, to to select a complete line of spring and summer millinery goods. On her return look for the latest styles, the tastiest hats, the neatest bonnets and richest and fanciest trimmings. She wishes to say to the ladies that she warants to suit them all as to quality and price.

A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.—We are reliably informed that a young man by the name of William Emerick, living in or near Logansville, Sugarvalley, Pa., while engaged at work on Rev. J. K. Miller's saw Mill, in the mountains above Logansville, near Rauchtown, came in contact with a circular saw and had his one arm sawed off right above the wrist. His head was also scalped so as to expose the brain. At last reports the unfortunate young man was still living, but was unconscious.

—Once upon a time the beautiful daughter of a farmer went to the spring for a bucket of water. While there it rained and rained. Upon her return to the house she found her feet were soaking wet. That night she became very ill, and before a doctor could be summoned she was dead.

Moral—Had this young woman provided herself wit a pair of J. H. MUSSER & SON'S Waterproof Shoes, all this pain and grief and trouble might have been obviated.

—Our store is now seasonably decorated with an immense stock of new spring goods. All are invited to come and look at the delightful styles, even if you don't want to buy. No trouble to show goods.
D.S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

TO THE PUBLIC.—H. S. Clemens, M. D., specialist in all chronic affections, and who also treats diseases largely by inhalations, will visit patients once a month at Bellefonte, with office at the Brockerhoff House, for one day only to examine them, and will then send the medicines from his regular office at the city of Allentown, Pa. Send for testimonials. Date of next visit will be from May 10th at 5 p. m. to the 11th at 7 o'clock, p. m., Tuesday and Wednesday. Please remember the date.

THE FIRST SNAKE STORY OF THE SEASON.—Jacob Kerstetter of Penn township, comes to the front with the first snake story. While at work on one of his fences the other day, he happened to stir up a heap of brush and leaves and discovered a nest of snakes beneath it, containing seven reptiles of the garter species. We think he said they varied in size from two to five—or fifteen—feet, we forget exactly which, but any ways his find was not as pleasant and agreeable as if he had kicked against a bag of gold. If we had been there we'd likely have felt like saying "let 'er go Gallagher."

TO THE PUBLIC.—A report has been circulated that the machinery in our mill is worn out, especially the Burr used for making flour. We take this means of declaring the report utterly false. We challenge any one in this part of the county to produce a better sett of Burrs than we have in our mill for the manufacture of flour and chop. We would just say that if any person doubts our word let them give our new miller, J. T. McDivitt, a trial, or come and see for themselves and be convinced of the untruth of said report. Mr. McDevitt intends to run a wagon weekly in this place, as well as to Aaronsburg, Coburn and Madisonburg. Thanking the people for past patronage we solicit a continuance of the same.
Respectfully,
18-4t E. C. CAMPBELL & SON.

—Millheim is beginning to have its labor troubles as well as other towns in the Union. On Monday morning we had a minature strike in this place. The seventeen of Crawford's knitting factory hands struck for wages. Some had been working on trial for the past six weeks, during which time no wages were paid them. On said morning the hands considered their work worth pay and a demand for wages was made. The manufacturer granted their demands, but laid down certain conditions which the hands refused to recognize and went out. We are pleased to state that the difficulty was adjusted the following day and that most of the knitters went back to work. Every thing is running smoothly again.

—J. H. Bibby the well-known hotel man of Spring Mills, was down last week and extended an urgent invitation to ye inkslinger to take dinner with him, an invitation which a half-starved country editor never refuses, and we, us & Co. complied with his request the other day, being accompanied by E. H. Long and family to take care of us. To make a long story short we would just say that Mr. Bibby and his estimable lady know to perfection how to get up a delicious meal and how to make their guests feel at their ease. Consequently the Bibby House enjoys a splendid run and is headquarters for summer guests during the warm summer months. Many improvements have been made in and about the hotel of late and to make the accommodations complete the house has been licensed this spring. Mr. Bibby justly anticipates a better season than ever, and we are sure he deserves to be successful.

—Advertising is the soul of trade. As all mercantile and mechanical pursuits strive to increase and prosper, the knowledge of their location and the nature of their business must be heralded abroad. For the attainment of this end they must seek the printer. The columns of the home newspaper are the proper channel through which merchants and mechanics must let the public know what they have and what they are doing, and where they carry on business. And right here we would remind business men in this section that the JOURNAL is a splendid advertising medium because it reaches nearly every home in these valleys. We do not believe in giving enormous and extravagant figures about the circulation of the paper, but it is a very fair one all the same and we need not be ashamed of it. An ounce of fact is worth a pound of bluster and brag every day, and we are always ready to lay open our subscription list for the inspection of advertisers. Try us.

—"What's the matter with Millheim ?" is a question frequently asked when reference is made to the license matter. It was a surprise to nearly everybody when the news reached here that both applicants for license in this town had been refused. Now, as far as we are concerned personally, we care not a particle whether there is a liquor license in town or not. At the same time it puzzles us that a town of the size of Millheim must go without license for two successive years when its smaller sister towns are privileged in that respect right along. Is it because Judge Furst and his associates doubt our people's ability to take care of themselves in case there is license ? It would look so. As far as we know the landlords of both hotels in this place have been keeping quiet and orderly houses during the past year and have abided by the law to the letter. There was no remonstrance on the part of the citizens and apparently no tangible reason for not granting them license. To reconsider the matter coolly it becomes evident that this borough must bear the reflection of not being a suitable place to have licensed hotels. We know of the Judge's temperance views and principles and honor them. But why those opinions of his should influence him only when this section of the county asks for license remains a mystery to many.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Nineteen years ago JOHN A. LOGAN, then Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in General Orders, set apart the 30th day of May and suggested that it be consecrated to the memory of the fallen soldiers of the Nation.

This being the first Memorial day occuring since his death, the present Commander-in-Chief asks that the eloquent and appropriate words of General Orders No. 11, 1868, uttered by that illustrious soldier and beloved comrade JOHN A. LOGAN be again taken as an inspiration and guidance for the 30th day of May, 1887. The following paragraphs are taken from said order of the deceased Commander :

"The 30th of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defence of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance no form of ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit.

"Let us, then, at the time appointed gather around their sacred remains and garland the passionless mounds above them with the choicest flowers of springtime ; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor ; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us a sacred charge upon a nation's gratitude—the soldier's and sailar's widow and orphan.

"It is the purpose of the Commander-in-Chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades.

"He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this Order, and lend its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of Comrades in all parts of the country in time for simultaneous compliance therewith.

PROGRAMME FOR MEMORIAL DAY, 1887, AT MILLHEIM AND VICINITY.

In pursuance with above order, which was read in last Monday evening's meeting of Lieut. W. W. Bierly Post, No. 298, of this place, arrangements were made for the proper observance of Memorial Day, and the following programme was adopted :

On Sabbath morning at 10 o'clock, there will be Memorial Services held in the Evangelical church, at Millheim, by Rev. J. G. M. Swengle. Comrades are urged to meet in the post room in full uniform not later than 9 o'clock, on said morning, from where they will march in line to the church. The post invites all churches in this community and surrounding towns to join in the services.

Monday—Decoration Day—the post will convene at M. M. Musser's, Aaronsburg, at 7 o'clock, a. m., from whence they will proceed with their day's work of decorating the soldiers' graves in the following order :

St. Paul's church, Haines township ;
Wolfe's church, " "
Aaronsburg. Reformed and Lutheran cemeteries.

Return to Millheim between 11 and 12 o'clock, and decorate before dinner.

Afternoon—proceed to Madisonburg where the ceremonies will take place at 3 o'clock.

Complete the route at Rebersburg and disperse.

The Millheim and Rebersburg bands, the Aaronsburg drum corps, all the Sunday schools of the respective towns mentioned, and as many citizens as can make it suit to come, are invited to participate in the exercises.

The ladies of the different localities are requested to consider themselves a special committee on floral decorations and their kind services are respectfully enlisted.

Col. Jas. P. Coburn, of Aaronsburg, has been selected as the orator of the day.

It is expected that all will take a lively interest in the solemn and impressive duties incident to this national holiday.

—It will be gratifying news to a large majority of our readers to learn that Prof. D.M. Wolf was unanimously elected superintendent of public schools, of Centre Co. at the election at Bellefonte last Tuesday. This makes his third term of another three years, but as he fills the bill so well we would not care if it were his sixth term.

Clinton county's school directors re-elected D. M. Brumgard for the same office.

In Northumberland county, after a most exciting contest, William E. Bloom, of Sunbury, was elected to succeed Wm. J. Wolverton.

—"Now mark my words, Polly, they'll bust all to smash before one year, too much stock there for a one horse town." "Oh, fiddlesticks, Sam ! They sell a superior quality for about the same price we've been paying for Shoddy. At any rate people nowadays go where the most goods are to select from ; and you bet, with their experience of nearly six months, the temperature will have to get awful low when J. H. MUSSER & SON get left in the shoe business, and don't you forget it."

--For the last few days there was much excitement in business circles in this valley over the financial failure of I. J. Grenoble, of Spring Mills, one of the most prominent business men in this section. The entire sum of his liabilities will amount to about $50,000. It is a very unfortunate affair as the gentleman's failure will affect a large number of other firms who had business transactions with him.

—IT is now conceded on all sides that there is not and never has been a remedy of such remarkable efficacy as Curtis' Carmelite Cordial, in curing cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera morbus, summer complaints, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation whatever, a single dose brings remarkable relief and a siugle bottle is guaranteed to cure any case or money refunded. A remarkable pain killer and valuable household remedy.

PENN HALL.

Mr. J. B. Fisher went to Philadelphia with a carload of fat cattle, and will at the same time buy his stock of Spring goods.

The readers of the JOURNAL at this place seem well pleased with its enlargement.

Squire Eisenhuth and family were the guests of M. H. Guise last Sunday.

Geo. Rowe, who was in the employ of J. C. Condo, has left town.

The population of our town has again increased. Adam says it's a girl.

T. Benton Ulrich was in town over Sunday.

Mr. Hick, one of Millheim's fashionable barbers passed through town distributing posters, recommending his shop and pool room. George, when are you coming?

The people of this vicinity are preparing themselves to entertain the ministers and other visitors attending the conference at this place.

There was quite a race through our town on Saturday between Dr. Allison and Mr. Bailey, but we understand the docter was left.

For several weeks our shoemaker missed some of his tobacco but kept the fact to himself in order to detect the thief. He has got the clue now by the nails in the thief's boots. He kindly asks the boy to pay for the tobacco or it will be dear chewing. DENVER DAN.

SMITH TOWN.

Last week we were more than pleased with the JOURNAL. We congratulate the editor in the rise he took with his newsy paper and wish him future success.

B. F. Frankenberger and W. F. Bressler are farming for Henry Keen.

W. C. Hubler, the supervisor of the turnpike, assisted by David Ulrich, is making great improvements on the road.

A number of our folks were to the concert of the string band at Madisonburg on Saturday evening and report a very fine time.

The farmers around here are done sowing oats and are now plowing for corn.

Mrs. Alice Duck has a cucumber vine with blossoms and small cucumbers. Hard to beat this time of the spring.

After Tuesday night's refreshing rain everything looks fair and promising.
JUMBO.

AARONSBURG.

H. H. Weaver is about putting down a flag-stone pavement.

Last Monday, May 2nd, was the first real warm day we have had this spring. Young America was out in his bare feet.

We congratulate the editor of the JOURNAL upon the enlargement and the general good appearance of that paper. All for only one dollar per year.

The M. E. congregation of this place have announced their intention of organizing a Sabbath school next Sunday, May 8th. All are invited to come.

We noticed Mr. Snyder, of the Musser Hotel of Millheim, in our burg on last Sunday. We suppose he spent the day with his daughter, who has her home at Mr. Luther Wert's.

Rev. Deitzler, Luth., returned from his eastern trip last week. Last Sabbath he assisted Rev. Lenhard, Rebersburg, Pa., in his communion services.

Wm. Morningstar, engineer of Mr. Cassler's saw mill at Pine creek, makes considerable music when blowing off steam. He has a steamboat whistle on the boiler, the only one in these parts.

Messrs. J. H. and M. M. Musser are repairing their wagon scales in front of the latter gentleman's store. The wood work was entirely rotten.

Some parties were very sadly disappointed that our hotel was not licensed, and we don't quite understand it. There certainly was no complaint against our new landlord, and we know of none against the house.
ANOTHER.

WOODWARD.

Emma Guiswite looks somewhat cityfied since her return from Lock Haven.

Grandmother Ettinger is again with us.

Mountain Avenue puts on a holiday appearance with its decorations of green.

Mrs. Runkle at the toll gate has embarked in the confectionery trade, to which she intends adding ice cream, cakes and beer. Success.

Too much confusion after the Sunday evening services. ARGENTI.

REBERSBURG.

The oats that was sowed before the last cold winter spell is now coming up nicely.

Austin Gramley and John Moyer raised their barns last week.

Clark Gramley had a very sore throat the latter part of last week. At this writing it has not developed sufficiently to tell what kind it is.

Daniel Royer bought a nice horse last week. He also sold a colt of Percheron stock to Samuel Glantz, of Sugar Valley.

John Kreamer who had been here visiting friends and relatives has started home for Valley Falls, Kansas. Jacob Burkert and William Rishel went along with him.

A horse belonging to Jared Kreamer was badly hurt while in the plow the other day. A sharp piece of iron in one of the traces cut the horse's hind leg, which caused it to swell considerably.

Many of the fences through this part of the country were leveled by last Friday's storm.

Philip Gramley lost a nice young colt the other day.

Henry Beck expects to go to Lock Haven in a few days to work on a brick yard the greater part of the summer. NANOD.

MADISONBURG.

Grant Shafer went west last week. Just to what part I did not learn.

Miss Daisy Noll, of Bellefonte, spent a few days with her father Wm. Noll, in this place,

One day last week one of Rachau's children ate some laurel, and for a time the childs condition was alarming.

Andrew Ocker purchased a horse from a drover the other day. He sold his little roan to Ed. Swartz.

Jacob Yearick and sister, Mrs. Geo. Hoy, of Jacksonville, were visiting friends in this valley last week.

P. C. Frank was out delivering fruit and ornamental trees last Thursday.

Lewis Wolf is canvassing the valley with a book entitled "Sea and Land" and is also selling dyspepsia receipts. "Quack," says the duck.

Wilson Hazel has the cellar wall of his house finished and the carpenters will be ready to raise the frame of the house in a few days. *

COBURN.

The JOURNAL reached us last week, considerably enlarged, and greatly improved in appearance. We saw the enlargement mentioned in the Saturday edition of the Phila. Times.

The license question has finally been settled and no license granted in this end of the county. The impression this would generally create is that we are all in the habit of using too much liquor, or that we have no landlords in this part capable of running a public house. We take the ground that where hotels are necessary they should be granted license and then made to comply with the law, which is strong enough if properly enforced. Whenever the hotels have no license the distillers have it all their own way and we consider that a licensed hotel in a community does not half the harm that a distillery does.

The party who made the report against the distillery here has under oath said that his charges were not true.

Andrew Stover is adding to the appearance of his property by building a boardwalk along the front of it.

Andy Campbell is improving his property with a new front porch and a number of shade trees.

W. H. Kremer observed Arbor Day by planting shade trees in front of his residence.

Jos. Kleckner has been away visiting for a week or more.

Work was begun on the new brick yard west of Coburn, where the brick are to be made for the new Lutheran church.

Rev. Swengle preached in German on Sunday afternoon. VALE.

GREENBRIAR.

Just now our neighborhood is in a turmoil caused by the actions of one of our officious citizens who is forever trying to mind other people's business and in the attempt neglects his own. But then he does not take the JOURNAL and consequently knows no better.

The young man from Jersey Shore, who came up last Saturday to see his best girl, was greatly disappointed when he found that she had transferred her affections on another fellow. Such is life and we must take it as it comes.

On last Saturday evening William Ertel's hen house was robbed. He says he knows the thieves and he gives them ten days' time to come and pay for the stolen fowls or else abide with the consequences.

One day last week Wash Tharp, while hauling logs to Sobers' mill, had the misfortune to get his leg between two logs, causing a very painful wound. By the aid of restoratives he was kept from fainting.

On last Monday the worktrain was seen on the railroad. Quite a number of our unemployed men have been looking for it anxiously.

"Another" of Aaronsburg will please ask the gentleman if he had not bought the horse as I had stated last week.

According to the decree of the court we will have to go dry for one year at least, as there is no license east of Spring Mills.

The material for the new brick yard is being hauled to Mr. Gentzel's meadow. Mr. Thos. Zeigler has the contract for burning 200,000 brick at $1.50 per 1000.

Mr. Edward Bracht was obliged to close his school for want of a sufficient number of scholars, the highest number present being 7.

Everybody here seems greatly pleased with the enlarged JOURNAL and all say it is now the best paper in the county.

Wonderful Cures.

W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of Rome, Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for two years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. They have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced Consumption have been entirely cured, by use of a few bottles of Dr King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by J. NEW JERSEY WINE SENT TO EUROPE.—Mr. Speer [of New Jersey] the Great Wine Man's Success has arisen from the strict purity and valuable properties of his wines for invalids and feeble persons, and his reputation extends around the world. His Port Grape Vine is now being ordered by families living in London and Paris.

SCARLET FEVER.—Darby's Prophylactic Fluid is unequaled in the treatment of Scarlet Fever. Used as a gargle it prevents the throat from becoming diptheritic, allays the inflammation and subdues the pain. Used to sponge the body it allays the itching inflammation of the skin and destroys infection.

Exposed in the sick room it will prevent the spread of contagion, and keep the atmosphere wholesome.

—That tired feeling afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucus surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on perscriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure that you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

Active, Pushing and Reliable.

Mr. J. Eisenhuth can always be relied upon to carry in stock the purest and best goods, and sustain the reputation of being active, pushing and reliable, by recommending articles with well established merit and such as are popular. Having the agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, colds and coughs, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of throat, lungs, or chest, and in order to prove our claim, we ask you to call and get a Trial Bottle free.

—MANY children suffer from day to day; puny, pallid, fretful and feverish, variable appetite and restless sleep, finally die, and their parents never suspecting the real cause, that the little sufferers' stomachs are infested and eaten through with worms. Twenty-five cents invested in a box of McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders would save the doctor's bills and the patient's life. Entirely vegetable. Easy and pleasant to take. Blew Out the Gas.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 23.—A well dressed young man, about 24 years, whose name is suppesed to have been James Gaunt, was found dead in a room in the St. Cloud hotel this morning. Hehad justbeen suffocated withgas from a jet which had not been turned off. He is a stranger here and is supposed to have comefrom West Chester, Pa

Boys Killed by Eating Wild Parsnips.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 28.—Near Boonville, five boys, J. B. Irwin, Emmett Mooro and Gifford Lampton, while in the woods yesterday, ate wild parsnips. Three of them died within an hour, and the fourth is not expected to recover. The fifth will probably survive.

Supposed Kidnapping by Gypsies.

MYERSVILLE, Pa., April 22.—A son of Adam Christ, a wealthy farmer residing two miles north of this place, disappeared from home on the 12th instant, since which time nothing has been heard of him. It is believed he was kidnapped by a strolling band of gypsies. Several gypsy camps in Berks and Lebanon counties have beensearched, but without success. The parents are greatly distressed on account of his prolonged absence.

Brother of Ex-Governor Pollock Dead.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa, April 28.—Dr. Samuel Pollock, for many years a leading physician of the West Branch valley, died to-day aged 79 years. He was abrother of ex-Governor James Pollock, of Philadelphia. He had been prominent in the state medical society, and was a noted classical and biblical scholar.

The Height of Meanness.

The meanest man competition has begun again. So far California takes the lead. It is recorded that a merchant in Los Angelos observed a newsboy peering down into the grating in the sidewalk in front of his store one afternoon recently, and upon inquiry leatned that the little chap had dropped a quarter into the place and was studying upon the best means of recovering his wealth. The merchant one of his clerks sent downintothe cellarrecovered the coin and very coolly put it into his till. A police-officer investigated the matter, and gave the boy twenty-five cents to replace the coin of which he had been pluudered.

Are Wooden Bridges Safest ?

A wooden bridge has been built in place of the iron death-trap which recently went down in the suburbs of Boston. Who is there to prove that after all wooden railroad bridges are not better than those built of iron ? No one has ever heard of a wooden structure going down because of its sudden contraction by cold or expansion by heat. Wood goes to decay, but it does not crystalize or rust out. A blow delivered by a broken shaft or locomotive driver which will crack and possibly destroy a bridge constructed of iron will not in any way cripple a good bridge made up of wood and bolts. Iron bridges have not been used long enough to be anything more than an experiment. The experiment has not yet proved entirely satisfactory.

A Sumptuous Smoking-Room.

A Russian millionaire has recently had built for him at St. Petersburg a most sumptuous smoking room, which is the astonishment of all the northern capital. Its richness consists not so much in its furniture, which is a model of simplicity, but in its walls. These are literally lined with European bank notes. Instead of the mass of white ceiling which forms the desperation of disciples of William Morris, is seen a profusion of Austrian notes most artistically grouped round a 10 florin bank note. Charming designs composed of French, English, Italian and Russian bank notes adorn the walls. The curious room has received many famous visitors from all points of the compass. Among others a celebrated Hungarian painter was introduced. He glanced up at the eccentric millionaire and said with a smile : "Sir, it is a pity you have already thus disposed of your money, for the same amount I would willingly have decorated your walls, perhaps more artistically,indeed than is now the case—by covering them with paintings, even as Michael Angelo did for his Holiness, Pope Julius II."

IF I wanted to get good, square judgement on something I had done, I had rather go to a newspaper office for it than any other court of justice. I know the justice of journals, their integrity and their purity of motives. I know that they probe into men's characters. No man whose character is pure need fear all the press in America. The way to be safe from so-called newspaper attacks is to be a Christian. The reporters are the best detective force in this country. They have brought more criminals to justice and punctured more shams than all agencies combined. —Rev. Sam Jones.

Bleeding at the Noes.

To prevent it keep erect. Apply cold water to the neck. Then take a long strip of cloth, an inch or so wide, and with a pencil push it gently into the nostril, being sure to carry the first of it well back toward the throat. See that there is nothing tight about the neck.

G. A. R. NOTES.

New York has 608 posts.

Rhode Island, with twenty posts, has 2,000 members.

New Hampshire has eighty four posts and 5,000 members.

The soldiers' Monument at Brooklyn, New York, will cost $250,000.

The Vermont Soldiers' Home was ready for occupancy on May 1.

Patrick Sullivan, Altoona, Pa., enlisted when only 4 feet 9 inches in height.

A bill is before the State Legislature of Missouri appropriating $1,000,000 to found a Soldiers' Home in that State.

Comrade Reuben Tovier, 76 years old, who served his country faithfully in two wars, is in the LaPorte county, Ind., poor house.

Orders for transportation of veterans, to the Illinois Sailors' and Soldiers' Home at Quincy can now be obtained on application to the officers of the home.

Members of the Loyal Legion who attend the meeting of the National Encampment G. A. R., at St Louis, September next, are invited to be the guests of the St, Louis Commandery.

The soldiers' monument at Logansport will be unveiled July 13. Postmaster General Vilas and General W. H. Gibson, of Ohio, will be the orators. The monument is to be 80 feet high, and will cost $10,000.

There are 300,000 pension claims still pending in the Pension Office. New cases and increases are being filled at the average of 20,000 per month, while the average cases disposed of will number 9,000 per month.

At the annual encampment of the Department of Massachusetts held in Boston last month the vote on the $8 Service Pension Bill averaged two to one in its favor; at the previous encampment was nearly four to one in its favor.

It will be of interest to veterans to learn that the Union Veteran Army, Department of Massachusetts, is a thing of the past, the few remaining members of the organization having decided some time since to let the organization die a natural but very quiet death.

The Department of Ohio at its last annual encampment of the department, had 584 organized posts. She now has abont 620. This gives to Ohio the largest number of Posts and makes her the second on the list in regard to membership. Pennsylvania being first in number of membership and New York third.

The Philadelphia City Troop is the oldest military organization in the United States. It has been in continuous service in the State or National Government since its organization, It was the first company to celebrate Washington's Birthday by parading on Feb. 22, 1805, and has kept up its observance ever since regardless of the weather.

Sour Grapes.

A field hand one day found in his trap a nice plump rabbit. He took him out alive, held him under his arm, patted him, and began to speculate on his qualities.

"Oh, how fat ! berry fat ! the fattest I eber did see ! Let me see how I'll cook him; I broil him ! No, he so fat he lose all de grease. I fry him. Ah, yes ! he so berry fat he fry himself. How fat he be ! No, I won't fry him, I stew him !"

The thought of the savory stew made the negro forget himself; and in spreading out the feast in his imagination, his arms relaxed, when suddenly off hopped the rabbit, and, squattering at a goodly distance away, he eyed his late owner with cool composure.

The negro knew, of course, that there was an end of the stew; and, therefore, summoning up all his philosophy, he thus addressed the rabbit, as he shook his fist at him: "You long eared, white-whiskered rascal you not so berryfat, after all!" —Youth's Companion.

Chickens Artificially Raised.

'For my part I don't see why Dr. Edson seizes all the bob veal and leaves all the spring chickens," said a veal dealer who had just lost a morning's profit through the visit of a lynx-eyed inspector.

"Why do you class the two together ?" inquired the reporter.

"Because one is just as immature as the other, and if young veal is unfit for food so are young chickens. Take for instance the eggs hatched by incubators. Any poultry expert will tell you that the flesh of the artificially hatched chicken is as insipid as a snowball, and yet people are willing to pay $3 a pair for them. The incubator folly is, however, less prevalent than it was a few years ago, and fewer people are ruined. It is fair to say that each year, for the past ten years, $1 000,000 have been lost by persons who believed that there was a fortune in hatching eggs with the aid of kerosene oil.

"Ten years ago a gentleman of this city bought a farm up the Hudson and spared no expense in attempting to make it a success of artificial chicken raising. He sunk $50,000 in the enterprise and gave it up as a failure. Last year a prominent type foundryman of this city became infatuated with the incubator craze, sold his snug home in Harlem, bought a place out near Paterson, N. J., and with his family started to hatch chickens with the aid of an incubator. The incubator cost $200. He spent $25 in kerosene oil, $22 in eggs, and hatched out two dozen chickens. Seventeen of them died with the pip. His family became disgusted and left him on the farm with the incubator,the pig and a cow. He couldn't milk the cow nor cook a meal, and when he wrote to the incubator people asking them to take the machine back they offered him $15 for it. An old hen, aided by nature and warm weather, will knock out the incubator in short order and besides the chickens will live and have some flavor to them."

THE LATE DOCTOR J. G. HOLLAND'S OPINION.

A Physician Climbing the Editorial Stairs.

The columns of the newspapers appear to be flooded with proprietary medicine advertisements. As we cast our eye over them, it brings to mind an article that was published by the late Dr. Holland in Scriber's Monthly. He says: "Nevertheless, it is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day were more successful than many physicians, and most of them, it should be remembered, were at first discovered or used in actual medical practice. When, however, any shrewd person, knowing their virtue, and foreseeing their popularity, secures and advises them, then, in the opinion of the bigoted, all virtue went out of them."

Is not this absurd ? This great man appreciated the real merits of popular remedies, and the absurdity of those that derided them because public attention was called to the article and the evidence of their cures. If the most noted physician should announce that he had made a study of any certain organ or disease of the body, or make his sign larger than the code size, though he may have practiced medicine and been a leader in all medical counsels, notwithstanding all this, if he should presume to advertise and decline to give his discovery to the public, he would be pronounced a quack and a humbug, although he may have spent his entire life and all his available funds in perfecting his investigation. Again we say, "absurd."

If an ulcer is found apon one's arm, and is cured by some dear soul of a grandmother, outside of the code, it will be pronounced by the medical profession an ulcer of little importance. But if treated under the code, causing sleepless nights for a month, with the scientific treatment, viz., plasters, washes, dosing with morphine, arsenic and other vile substances, given to prevent blood poisoning or deaden pain, and yet the ulcer becomes malignant, and amputation is made necessary at last, to save life, yet all done according to the "isms" of the medical code, this is much more gratifying to the medical profession, and adds more dignity to that distinguished order than to be cured by the dear old grandmother's remedy.

This appears like a severe arraignment, yet we believe that it expresses the true standing of the medical profession in regard to remedies discovered outside of their special "isms." One of the most perplexing things of the day is the popularity of certain remedies, especially Warner's safe cure, which we find for sale everywhere. The physician of the highest standing is ready to concede its merits and sustain the theories the proprietors have made —that is, that it benefits in most of the ailments of the human system, because it assists in putting the kidneys in proper condition, thereby aiding in throwing off the impurities of the blood, while others with less honesty and experience deride, and are willing to see their patient die scientifically, and according to the code, rather than have him cured by this great remedy. Yet we notice that the popularity of the medicine continues to grow year by year. The discoverer comes boldly before the people with its merits, and proclaims them from door to door in our opinion much more honorably than the physician who, perchance, may secure a patient from some catastrophe, and is permitted to set a bone of an arm or a finger, which he does with great dignity, yet very soon after takes the liberty to climb the editor's back stairs at 2 o'clock in the morning to have it announced in the morning paper that "Dr. So-and-so was in attendance," and thus secures for his benefit a beautiful and free advertisement. We shall leave it to our readers to say which is the wisest and most honorable.

He Could Sing.

Several years ago on one of our northern bays, when, as yet, steamers were infrequent visitors, a certain small boat used to ply, touching at various points, according as its freight or the weather demanded.

The crew was somewhat limited, consisting of the captain, the first mate, whose name was Barnabas, and cook, John, who, when stress of work required, also acted as second mate.

John was an excellent cook and a fairly good sailor, but was afflicted with an impediment in his speech which made him somewhat backward in expressing himself, and was especially annoying, if, for any reason, he becomes excited. At such times the more he wanted to say something the less he was able to say it. Fortunately, however, he could sing as straight as any one.

One day the Captain was below taking a nap, while Barnabas and John were running the boat. A sudden squall happened to come up, and a puff of wind brought the boom around with such unexpected violence as to knock the unwary Barnabas overboard. Thereupon John rushed into the cabin in the wildest excitement to inform the Captain of what had occurred, but, as usual, he was unable to get out a coherent sentence.

"B—b—b—b—" he stuttered, until the Captain, in a rage, shouted :

"Thunderation ! man, sing it if you can't say it," and John, catching at the happy suggestion, sang :

'Overboard is Barnabas,
Half a mile astern of us."

The boat was immediately put about and the luckless Barnabas recovered.—Detroit Free Press.

DISCHARGED CONVICTS.

A Famous Detective's Ideas Concerning Their Protection and Employment.

The question arises as to how these men can be employed. Of course, it is not possible to force these men into employment; neither would it be proper to put them into responsible positions. They should be graded according to their intelligence and education. There are many places where men of this kind could be employed where there would be no motive for them to steal, and where it would be impossible for them to do so. Many of them would find employment themselves, and, if let alone, would continue in such employment, but some society would have to be formed similar to the Society of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to protect them. Its agents should be in all parts of the country. For instance, where a man has been convicted of a crime in New York, on being released from prison it might be necessary, in order to keep him away from his old associates, and give him a new start in life, to send him to some other city or locality. Communication should be kept up between these various agents of the society in the different parts of the country, and one could help the other. I am satisfied that if an organization of this kind were once started and properly managed under honest and competent officers and agents, it would soon gain the confidence of the public and charitable men and women who would come to its aid, and be among the most earnest and influential looking toward the reformation of these men and women. Men coming from prison would soon learn to have confidence in the society, and would be convinced that they could trust it, and that people merely for the sake of curiosity could not ascertain anything in regard to them. Of course there would be criminals who would endeavor to impose on the society and try to use it for the purpose of prompting some of their schemes, but I venture to say that the number would be very few. The society should also make it a rule that where an effort had been made to reform a man, and he had intentionally and willfully deceived the society and still pursued a life of crime, the society's course would be to give information to the police which would enable them to follow the man and cause him to again be stopped in his criminal career. There are already "prison aid societies." No doubt they are of considerable benefit, but their means are not sufficient to enable them to be of a great deal of service, and men who have been criminals and to whom I have talked in regard to reforming, have expressed to me their lack of confidence in them. The invariable conclusion reached has been that the principal thing that is given by them is advice and very little assistance. It is just possible that this may arise from lack of funds. If a society of this kind were organized of course it would be necessary to keep a complete record of all those who had been assisted, and the employment they had been put at. It would also be necessary for the agents of the society to keep a lookout for the welfare of these men, and to see how they were getting along. The books and records of the society should of course be considered secret, and no information should be given from the same unless the society's agent were thoroughly convinced that it was for the purpose of aiding the ends of justice. Whenever a complaint was made about any one who had been a criminal that he was being persecuted by police officials or others, the society should at once take steps to put a stop to such persecution.

A man who has been known as a professional criminal, starting out to reform, has an almost impossible task to accomplish, and although a number have succeeded, very many have been forced back from their good resolution by persecution on the part of police officials and those who have know them in their criminal career.—Robert A. Pinkerton, in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

An Interesting Centennial.

The Pennsylvania Prison Society (late the Philadelphia Society for Alleviating the Miseries of Public Prisons) celebrates its Centennial Anniversary in Philadelphia, this week, May 3, 4 and 5. Meetings are to be held each day, from 3 to 5 and 8 to 10 o'clock, p. m. Addresses will be delivered by distinguished penologists of this and other countries. The mornings will be devoted to visiting the Eastern Penitentiary, County Prison, House of Refuge, House of Correction, Station Houses, etc. The Governor of the State is expected to welcome the delegates and guests. The Mayor of the city will make an address of welcome. The officers of the State, the Legislature, Judges of the Courts, and others are invited.

This is perhaps the oldest society of the kind, having been organized May 8, 1787. It still preserves the original constitution, minute book, and roll. There were present at the first meeting thirty-one gentlemen, and these with many others are recorded as the original signers of the constitution. Their names are recognized as those of the men "who gave character and prosperty to the city," such as Benjamin Rush, Rt. Rev. William White, Benjamin Franklin, and others honored in the history of the city and the State. It stated that in its earliest days the founders of this Society would take discharged prisoners into their own homes, and shelter and provide for them. To this day it continues to care for the same class in methods similar to those of our own New York Prison Association. These associations, in the rescue of a single criminal, often save the State thousands of dollars, which would have been expended for his re-trial and re-incarceration.—New York Observer.

A Waste of Time.

Mother—"Well I wouldn't waste any more time there !"—Puck.

Commercial Honesty.

Confidence between dealer and customer is a grand thing. It's got to have a deeper foundation than that one man has the goods and another wants them. Without seeming censorious, it's got to have a more substantial base than even commercial honesty. That tolerates adulterations of goods, admixtures of poor materials and good, and runs its risks, if needs be, of being found out. If anyone in business wants to get firmly rooted in the esteem of those he deals with, he must be ready to go a step farther—be sponsor for what he sells out-and-out, or ready to make it good. Confidence is sure to follow such a course. It may seem like giving a heroic character to business to put it on the same footing as morality, but that's the only price that will purchase the confidence of others. Integrity can't be made two-faced. Young man about starting out in business, ponder this.
